August 1–3, 2016 • Hyatt Regency • Orange County, California
Colleagues and friends,

You are invited to join us for the 2016 National Conference, Advancing Excellence in Practice and Policy: What Works For Families Affected By Substance Use which promises to highlight research, cutting edge programs, practices, and policies that public and private agencies can use to serve children, youth, and families affected by substance use. There is an ongoing need to ensure progress for children and youth where substance use has impacted their health and well-being either directly or through their family.

Addressing issues that pertain to the impact that substance use has on the children, youth, and families that come into contact with the child welfare system and encouraging additional collaboration between child welfare and the substance use treatment systems are two goals of the conference. Over the three days of the conference, you will hear from your peers, experts, and families about innovative ways to collaboratively advance these goals in agencies and communities. You will also experience informative and engaging workshops, super sessions, and expert sessions featuring speakers from federal/state/county level public and private child welfare agencies, the dependency courts, federal/state/county level substance use prevention, intervention and treatment agencies, and research organizations. Special interest sessions include the faith-based community, fatherhood, military families, and Latino and Native American families.

We are especially pleased to have developed this conference in partnership with our member organization, Children and Family Futures (CFF). CFF has added their years of experience operating the National Center on Substance Abuse and Child Welfare and their deep relationship in the field of substance use to the broad knowledge base of the Conference Planning Committee to create an extraordinary conference. We thank the sponsors and exhibitors for supporting this conference and encourage others to join this great group as a display of commitment to excellence in services for children, families, and communities that are most challenged. We encourage you to join us and address one of the most critical issues that is negatively impacting our shared commitment to advancing child and family well-being.

Sincerely,

Christine James-Brown, CWLA President & CEO

Mary Chaliman, is Manager of the Protect MiFamily Project and the Child Welfare Medical Unit in the Office of Child Welfare Policy and Programs for the Michigan Department of Health and Human Services. When substance use touched her family, Mary became the relative caregiver, licensed foster parent, and then the adoptive parent of her granddaughter.

Dr. Kimberly A. Johnson, began her tenure as Director of the Center for Substance Abuse Treatment (CSAT) at the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration (SAMHSA) in February 2016. Previously, she was the Deputy Director for Operations of CHESS/NIATx, a research center at the University of Wisconsin, Madison that focuses on systems improvement in behavioral health.

Rafael López, Commissioner of the Administration on Children, Youth & Families (ACYF), is a results-driven leader with experience in helping lead complex organizations focused on improving the lives of children, families and communities. He most recently served as Senior Policy Advisor at the White House Office of Science and Technology Policy, and previously as Associate Director at the Annie E. Casey Foundation.

David Sheff, is author of Beautiful Boy: A Father’s Journey Through His Son’s Addiction, a New York Times #1 bestseller. The riveting page-turner recounts Sheff’s struggle to help his son Nic overcome his methamphetamine addiction. His ongoing research and reports on the science of addiction earned him a place on Time magazine’s list of most influential people.

Dr. Nancy K. Young, is Executive Director of Children and Family Futures (CFF), a California-based research and policy institute. She also serves as: Director of the federally-funded National Center on Substance Abuse and Child Welfare; Director of the Administration on Children and Families technical assistance program for the Regional Partnership Grants; and Director of the Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention’s technical assistance program for Family Drug Courts.
SUPER SESSIONS

Addiction, Treatment and Recovery: Implications for Child Welfare Policy and Practice

This super session will focus on the neuroscience of addiction, including the chronic effects of addiction on the brain, the recovery process and advances in substance use disorder treatment. Attendees will gain insight into how the treatment and recovery process impacts child welfare outcomes and will learn how child welfare can be a good consumer of substance use disorder treatment services.

Developing a Plan of Safe Care for Infants with Prenatal Substance Exposure and their Mothers: Collaborative Approaches Learned in a Six State Initiative

This super session will feature the lessons learned from the National Center on Substance Abuse and Child Welfare’s Substance Exposed Infant Initiative, a two-year SAMHSA-funded project with six states to strengthen their capacity to serve pregnant women with substance use disorders, particularly those with opioid use disorders and their infants with Neonatal Abstinence Syndrome. Child welfare, substance use disorder treatment, medical care providers, and researchers have made significant collaborative efforts at the state and local level to address the needs of infants who have been prenatally exposed to substances.

Family Drug Courts: Children’s Interventions to Improve Outcomes

This super session will present data and outcome findings from local and cross-site evaluations to demonstrate how incorporating children’s interventions within Family Drug Courts (FDC) leads to improved child welfare, substance use treatment, and family outcomes.

Built from a common vision and extraordinary cross-system collaborative effort, the FDC movement has emerged as one of the promising models for improving outcomes for children and families affected by substance use disorders in the child welfare system.

Effective Practice and Clinical Strategies Across the Continuum of Child Welfare Services for Addressing the Needs of Children with Fetal Alcohol Spectrum Disorders and Other Conditions Related to Prenatal Substance Exposure

Emerging research has highlighted the large population of children in child welfare who have Fetal Alcohol Spectrum Disorders and other conditions related to prenatal substance exposure who go undiagnosed or are misdiagnosed and are not having their needs met. This super session will help providers understand what works and increase the effectiveness of services to meet the specialized needs of these children.

ASK THE EXPERT SESSIONS

The conference will offer twelve expert sessions that are intended to provide attendees with a forum to have in-depth discussions and delve deeper into specific topics with experts. The sessions will build on the conference workshop and super session topics and are designed to be a discussion among peers on successful strategies. Topic areas include: collaborative approaches, adoption and kinship care, infants with prenatal substance exposure, family drug courts, identification of substance use disorders and engagement in treatment, addiction 101, medication assisted treatment and opioid use disorders, funding strategies and information sharing, children with fetal alcohol spectrum disorders and other conditions related to prenatal substance exposure, accreditation, and fatherhood.
The Importance of Relationships in Family Drug Court: Enhancing Well-Being for Children and Families Using a Team Approach

Project Safe Start Nebraska successfully enhanced services for young children in Family Drug Court (FDC) in Lancaster County. The FDC team developed an infusion model that incorporates the principles of Project Safe Start but also includes all substance abuse cases. Participants will learn evidence-based practices for substance abuse and early childhood mental health and trauma. This court's practice and process works on all relationships including those between team and parent, parents and children, and the court and the team.

Innovative Approaches for Child Welfare Engaged Families Experiencing Substance Abuse Disorders, Complex Trauma and Mental Health Difficulties

This workshop will highlight several interventions designed to treat child welfare engaged families experiencing substance use disorders, complex trauma and mental health difficulties. The workshop will review progressive strategies utilized to promote successful family outcomes for both parents and children. The workshop will also highlight outcome and cost-benefit findings from an evaluation study examining effectiveness of full family treatment and sober supportive housing.

Even With a Substance Abuse History, Fathers Play a Key Role in the Lives of Their Children

This workshop introduces Project Fatherhood, an innovative, theoretically sound, evidence-informed model of practice to reduce risks to children by engaging fathers in their care and development with a special focus on substance abuse. Participants will learn to identify and overcome individual and systemic barriers; methods for ensuring father inclusion; long term effects of father involvement; and strategies to create and/or replicate the program in diverse communities.

Successful Substance Abuse and Therapeutic Program Elements for Young Children and Their Families in Child Welfare

This workshop will provide a national perspective on young children's involvement in child welfare, including for family substance abuse, and the landscape of programs designed to meet their needs. The Sobriety Treatment and Recovery Teams (START) model, an evidence-supported CPS intervention for substance use and child maltreatment, will be highlighted. START strategies will be described, as well as implementation lessons learned and outcomes, including lower recurrence and re-entry rates, in a rural Appalachian county.

Integrated Housing and Service Models for Child Welfare Involved Families Affected by Homelessness and Substance Use

Homeless families involved with the child welfare system and affected by substance use disorders must have access to a comprehensive array of housing and service options to help them succeed in their recovery. Participants will learn about: collaborative strategies for improving care coordination between housing, child welfare and treatment systems; evidence-based housing and service models for homeless child-welfare involved families affected by substance use; and effective family-centered practices for serving parents with co-occurring mental health and substance use disorders and their children.
Partnering with Courts to Better Address Substance Use in Dependency and Neglect Cases

Partnering with courts to improve the way dependency cases with substance use are handled can be challenging at the state and local levels. Participants will learn about: court programs and multi-disciplinary approaches that better address substance use, including a new initiative known as the Dependency and Neglect System Reform Program; effectively engaging key judicial leaders to better address substance use; and strategies for building partnerships with the Court Improvement Program to better address substance use.

Changing the Odds — Celebrating Families!, ¡Celebrando Familias!

Celebrating Families! (CF!) and ¡Celebrando Familias! are family-focused, trauma-informed, skill building programs developed for dependency drug courts (DDC). Incorporating research from the fields of prevention, addiction, and learning differences, CF! increases protective factors and decreases risk factors. Evaluation outcomes from multiple sites show significant positive results in learning and applying parenting skills and improved family dynamics with significantly increased family reunification rates and decreased time to reunification.

The CWLA National Blueprint states that it will take the combined knowledge, skills, and resources of all systems, services, communities, and individuals to ensure that all children will grow up safely, in loving families and supportive communities, with everything they need to flourish—and with connections to their culture, ethnicity, race and language.

The CWLA National Blueprint serves as a foundation for our Standards of Excellence and a framework for all children, youth and families to flourish.

Although the formal child welfare system has a specific role to play for children who have been or are at risk of abuse and neglect, responsibility for the well-being of children and youth extends well beyond traditional child welfare. By aspiring to the standards detailed in the CWLA National Blueprint, families, individuals, communities, providers, and other organizations can create the greatest opportunities for all children and youth to succeed and flourish. It is only by achieving a vision for all children and youth that the most vulnerable among them can flourish.

Protecting Our Children

Domestic Minor Sex Trafficking Training for Out-of-Home Care Providers

This curriculum utilizes a train-the-trainer model, and was designed for social workers and other professional and paraprofessionals to engage others in learning how to identify, report, and prevent Domestic Minor Sex Trafficking (DMST) in the community at large and in out-of-home care (OHC) settings (foster care, residential facilities, group homes, drop-in centers, homeless shelters, juvenile justice settings, aftercare programming).

The OHC target audience for the curriculum was chosen due to the frequent contact these providers have with victims, and due to their ability to make a difference. However, the train-the-trainer model also can be used by concerned citizens and for individual, personal, and professional development in regard to outreach education.
