Dear State Child Welfare Director:

As you know, the Children's Bureau (CB) recently released ACYF-CB-PI-18-09, which provides instructions on the requirements state title IV-E agencies must meet when electing the title IV-E prevention program. The Program Instruction includes a description of the HHS initial practice criteria and first list of services and programs selected for review as part of the Title IV-E Prevention Services Clearinghouse (Clearinghouse).

The CB and the Office of Planning, Research and Evaluation (OPRE) have taken the opportunity, requirements, and timelines within the Family First Prevention Services Act (FFPSA) with regard to establishing the Clearinghouse very seriously. Despite very short timelines and a limited budget to establish the Clearinghouse, CB and OPRE have explored all options for the most expeditious path to awarding the contract, while complying with the requirements of federal contract law and policy. Our goal has been, and remains, to review and rate as many services and programs as quickly as possible through the Clearinghouse to support states' efforts to improve outcomes for children and families through implementation of FFPSA.

In developing the revised initial criteria and selecting the first dozen services and programs for review, the CB and OPRE considered comments and recommendations from more than 360 unique responses to the Federal Register Notice (FRN) (83 FR 29122) issued June 22, 2018. These responses from key stakeholders and input from the California Evidence-Based Clearinghouse for Child Welfare (CEBC) informed the initial list of services and programs to be reviewed. Building from recommendations received from the FRN, federal partners, other key stakeholders, and ongoing consultation with the field, the Clearinghouse will continue to identify and prioritize additional services and programs for review on a rolling basis. We fully expect to add to the body of title IV-E reimbursable services as expeditiously as possible.

We recognize title IV-E agencies have many questions about the Clearinghouse, how it will function, and the programs and services that will be selected for review. Since the award of the contract in September of 2018, the development of the Clearinghouse has been ongoing and we will continue to refine and develop the procedures necessary for identification and review of services. The Clearinghouse will provide additional information, a more detailed description of the revised initial criteria, procedures for systematic review and re-review, and definitions of key terminology in the forthcoming Prevention Services Clearinghouse Handbook of Standards and Procedures, which we expect to be issued early April 2019.

The Clearinghouse is leveraging the insights and work of other evidence clearinghouses including, but not limited to, the CEBC and the Home Visiting Evidence of Effectiveness (HomVEE). The Clearinghouse is developing unique standards and procedures in accordance with the statutory requirements detailed in the FFPSA. There are key differences between the statutory requirements of FFPSA and the standards and procedures used by other clearinghouses. For example, while CEBC uses a peer-review process to rate and review studies of programs and services, the Clearinghouse is required to conduct an independent, systematic evidence review. Initial piloting of the criteria in accordance with FFPSA requirements indicated that some of the programs and services may not achieve the same ratings found in CEBC. In addition, distinct from CEBC, the Clearinghouse allows programs or services with rigorous quasi-experimental evidence to achieve a “supported” or “well-supported” rating and includes the review of publicly available research studies including those that do not appear in peer-reviewed journals. Similarly, the rating criteria and outcome domains identified in FFPSA do not directly align with the criteria established by HHS for evidence-based home visiting models in HomVEE. For example, in accordance with the statutory requirement of FFPSA, the Clearinghouse includes criteria for sustained effects based on length of time after the end of treatment, while HomVEE includes criteria for sustained effects based on length of time after enrollment. As a result of these and other key differences, all programs and services will have to be rated using the Prevention Services Clearinghouse Handbook of Standards and Procedures.

To assist agencies with understanding the work that has occurred thus far with regard to the Clearinghouse and in planning for the implementation of the title IV-E prevention program, below is a timeline for events that have occurred and estimated dates for additional guidance:
